

L MUSEUM Wonders

A faithful representation of a quarrel in a family of orang-utans. How like the Simians are some folk, after all!

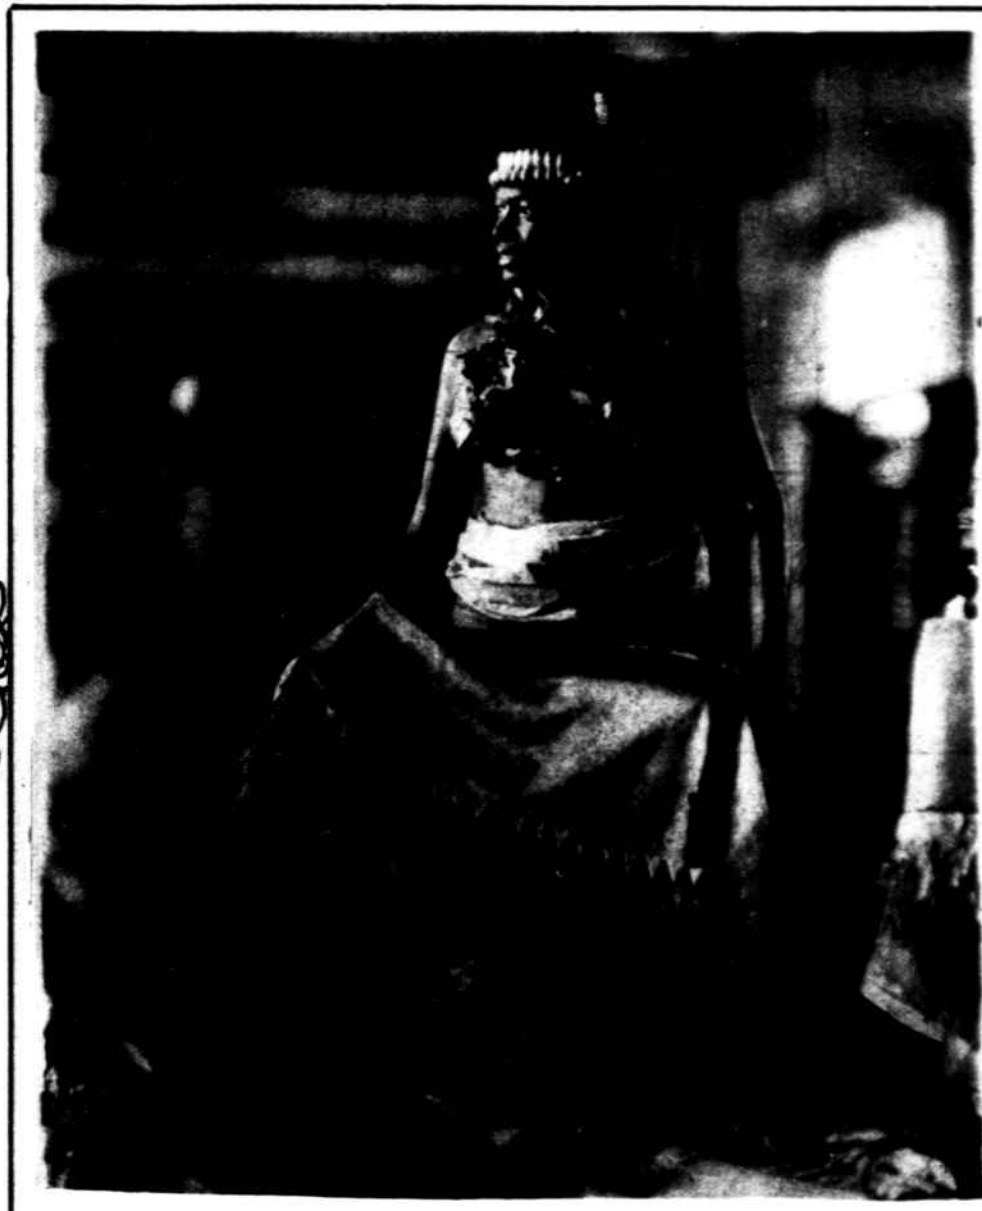

A terror in his day was the horned dinosaur, but that was some millions of years ago. In this model he has a positively impish look.

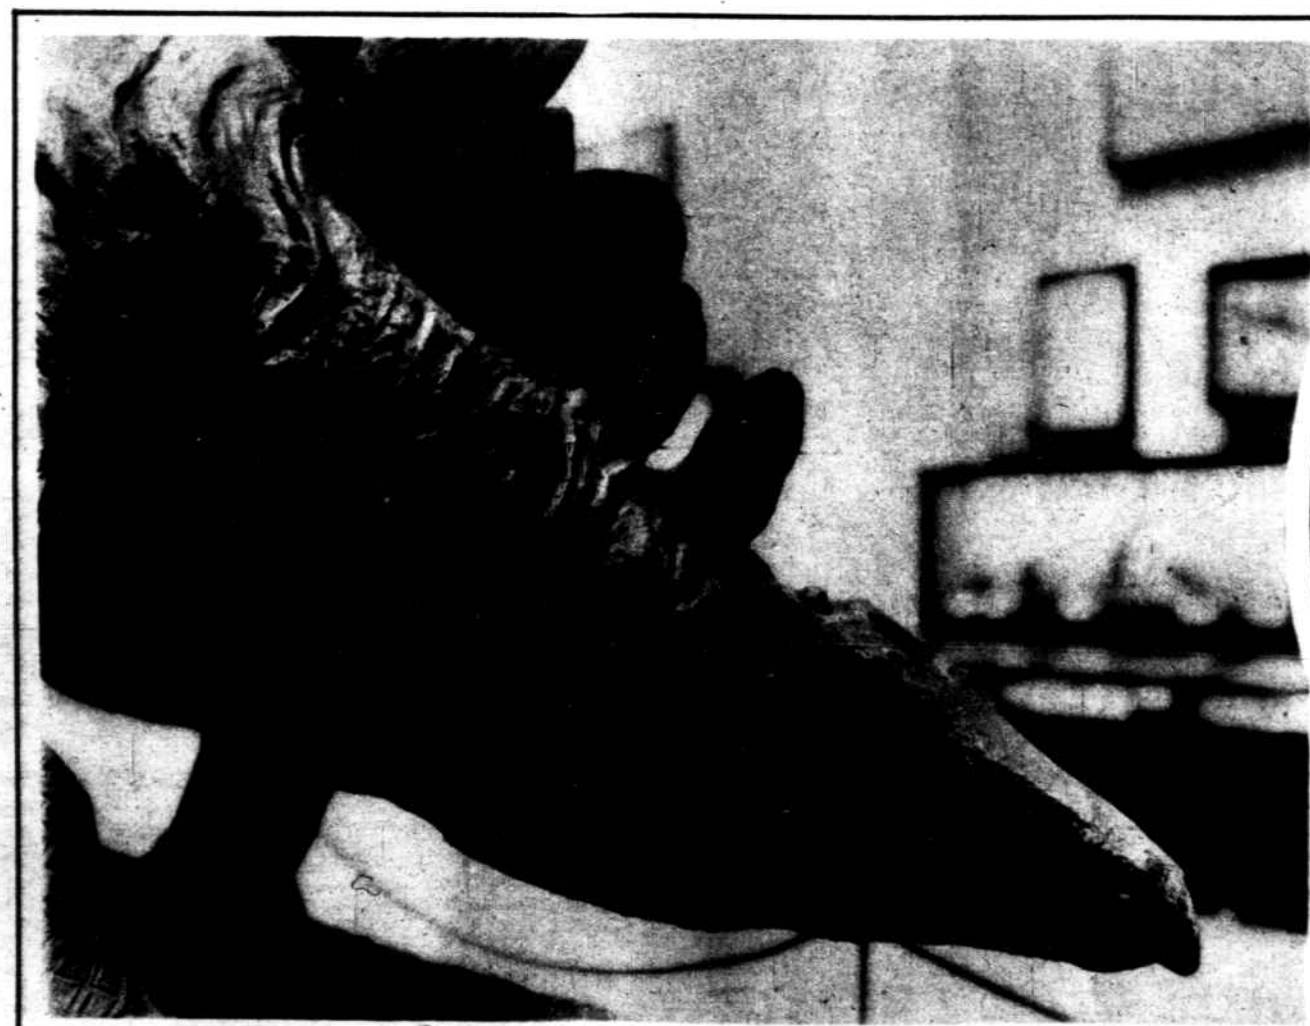

ueblo situate in northeastern real communal dwelling.

From the Cocopa Indian group in the ethnological department. The young braves learned early.

Samoan belle of the ball. All dressed up and ready for her dusky partner. Cannibalistic, perhaps, but good-natured.

Cousin to the horned dinosaur, this species, the armored, must have been just as bad a fellow to meet up with.

Another Samoan maid, "big as life and twice as natural."

South entrance of the National Washington's own House of Wonders.